Before you sign

1. Check the dog's description and microchip number against a scan and the registry record, and against this form. Label an estimated age as an estimate.
2. Check each party's name and address against photo ID. Confirm that the person transferring the dog owns it and that no adoption contract, co-owner or court order restricts the transfer.
3. Write the agreed fee, the amount received and any balance separately. If no money changes hands, write $0 and "no fee". Only say "paid in full" when it is.
4. Write down what the current owner discloses about health, behavior (including any bite history), medication and daily care in section 2, and list the records and belongings handed over. Say what is missing or unknown instead of guessing.
5. Mark only the statements in section 4 that are true. A return arrangement, health guarantee, breeding restriction or other continuing promise must be written on this form or on page 2; it does not exist otherwise.
6. After the handover, complete the microchip registry's transfer process and check the new owner's local dog-licensing and vaccination rules. If the dog will cross state lines, check the destination state's animal-health requirements first. Puppy sales, breeder contracts and rescue or shelter placements have rules of their own; this form is for a private transfer between individuals.
7. Sign and date in each other's presence. A witness or notary is only needed when your state or the asset requires one. Keep a signed copy each.
